CAROL DIAZ

Carol Diaz, 30, a beginner chef for the Japanese Mediactico Restaurant in Lisbon, needed a trustworthy source of information regarding the cost of living in Portugal (including budget management and savings planning), preferably with as much personalized data as possible, back when she was doing her research about Portugal, when she was preparing to move here from Venezuela, so that she could be more confident on her financial stability during the first months.

She's always been a hard worker, doing her best to achieve her goals. However, she still remembers the uncertainty that she had during her research about how Much money she should have with her during the first months after arriving in Portugal, in case she could not find a job right away. She believes the difficulty to find values on how much money she should expect to spend of food, transportation, housing and bills, should be improved, perhaps by having a central source of information that people wanting to immigrate to Portugal could fill with their data and receive an expected budget.
